
Access and Participation Statement 2018-19

Introduction

1. This 2018-19 Statement sets out how the Royal Academy of Dance maintains fair access to its higher education programmes, promotes student progression and success, and supports wider HE sector efforts to increase and broaden participation in higher education. It has been prepared in line with guidance previously issued by the Office for Fair Access.
2. The Royal Academy of Dance exists to promote and enhance knowledge, understanding and practice of dance globally. It does this by educating and training teachers and students and seeks to lead the world in dance education and training and be recognised for the highest standards of teaching and learning. As the professional membership body for dance teachers it seeks to inspire and empower dance teachers, students and staff to make innovative, artistic and lasting contributions to dance and dance education throughout the world.
3. With more than 1,000 students on our teacher training programmes and more than a quarter of a million students being examined on its syllabi, the Royal Academy of Dance is recognised globally as a centre for excellence in dance training and has a presence in 84 countries, with 36 offices and around 14,000 members worldwide. In the AY 2017-2018 the Faculty of Education had 164 students on its university-validated programmes of study.
4. The Royal Academy of Dance is committed to the promotion of dance and specifically ballet, to encourage the participation in dance across all sections of society. Through outreach work in schools, community engagement and specialised projects for boys, older learners and those with disabilities, the Royal Academy of Dance aims to broaden the traditional reach of ballet and promote dance as a path to well-being and self-expression for all sectors of society.
5. The charitable objects of the Royal Academy of Dance as set out in its Charter are to:
 - 5.1. elevate and advance the art of dance by promoting the correct tuition of dance in its highest forms, and
 - 5.2. advance education in the art of dance, in particular by:
 - 5.2.1. providing facilities for dance, dance education and training;
 - 5.2.2. setting up and maintaining programmes of study for the education and training of dancers, teachers and notators of dance (such programmes to include, but not be limited to, the study of Benesh Movement Notation, whenever appropriate);

5.2.3. setting and conducting examinations in dance and the teaching of dance;

5.2.4. educating, training, assessing, registering, licensing and chartering teachers of dance who meet standards determined by the Board from time to time, and

5.3. promoting teaching of dance.

Strategic Approach to Widening Participation and Fair Access.

6. The Royal Academy of Dance's vision, mission and core values set out its fundamental commitment to engage the widest possible range and number of people with dance and ballet in particular, globally.
7. The Royal Academy of Dance is committed to providing diverse opportunities for those wishing to train as dance teachers. In order to achieve this, Faculty of Education dance teacher training programmes are devised with widening participation in mind, which can be evidenced through acknowledging inclusive practices in learning, teaching and assessment.
8. The Faculty of Education's approach to widening access from under-represented groups includes the following initiatives:
 - 8.1. Presentations at career fairs in socio-economically disadvantaged areas to attract potential students who may not have considered dance teaching and/or study at undergraduate level a career option;
 - 8.2. Provide access to bursaries and hardship funding for students once on programme to support continuation of studies;
 - 8.3. Contribute to Royal Academy of Dance initiatives such as 'Boys Only!' and Dancing Down the Wicket, a collaborative project between the Royal Academy of Dance and Middlesex Cricket Club, which aims to introduce dance to male students, a group which is currently under-represented in Faculty of Education programmes of study.
9. The Faculty of Education is committed to supporting retention of students from under-represented groups including those from minority ethnic groups and those with additional learning needs and/or disabilities. To achieve this, early interventions for students who may be at risk of non-continuation are implemented. These interventions include one-to-one tutor support often resulting in individual needs plans, tailored study skills support with a dedicated Study Skills Co-ordinator and access to a dedicated Student Support Officer who will work with students on an individual basis to support specific needs.
10. The Faculty of Education recognises that there may be attainment gaps between students from under-represented groups. To-date the Faculty of Education has not seen evidence of this in its student body, which may be attributed to the specialised nature of dance teacher education and the current socio-economic and gender makeup of its students. Given the relatively small size of the student body Faculty of Education staff are in a unique position to provide help and interventions for any student who may be identified as needing additional support.

11. The Royal Academy of Dance's international profile in dance teacher education provides a range of opportunities for those wishing to work in the sector nationally and internationally. Given the diversity of the field of dance teaching and the breadth of the education and training received, Faculty of Education graduates including those from under-represented groups have opportunities to engage in a multiplicity of dance teaching contexts, including Royal Academy of Dance outreach programmes, such as Step Into Dance and RADiate. The Faculty of Education will support students in realising their employment ambitions as dance teachers through one-to-one tutorials, career symposiums as part of programme delivery and facilitating connections with industry professionals and Faculty of Education partners.

Our Ambitions and Strategy for 2018-2019

12. The Faculty of Education has identified the following three objectives for Widening Access and Participation to its university-validated programmes:
13. Throughout 2018-2019, the Faculty of Education will consult with current students on ways in which they feel the objectives stated below will be achieved. In addition, the Faculty of Education will seek the views of the student body through its Student Staff Liaison Committee and Student Representatives on areas which they feel could be further developed to increase access and participation to Royal Academy of Dance programmes of study.
